

Citavi Team Released

---

Wädenswil, Switzerland — July 20, 2011 — Users of the leading reference management program in the German-speaking world now have the ability to work on shared projects. Citavi 3.1 lets groups leverage Citavi's unparalleled reference management, knowledge organization, and task planning features at the same time on a local network. Offsite users can log in with a VPN to access projects.

Team members can collaborate on a document repository, sharing the work of evaluating and analyzing full texts. Members can be granted reading or editing privileges for each project and password protection is available. Citavi Team is ideal for group publications, research proposals, and departmental document repositories.

About Citavi

Citavi has quickly become the leading reference management program in the German-speaking world. In less than five years, hundreds of thousands of users have chosen Citavi as the preferred tool for their academic work. Almost all major German universities have site licenses for Citavi, allowing their students, faculty, and staff to use Citavi Pro at no cost. In late 2010 Citavi was released in English as well.

Citavi's success lies in its ability to go beyond traditional reference management programs to support each step of the academic research process. Citavi helps with all research tasks, from searching for sources in over 4000 online resources, to excerpting quotations, creating outlines, and planning tasks, all the way to creating a formatted publication.

Citavi is especially well-suited to inexperienced university students, since it guides them through the entire academic research process. At the same time, the program offers the robust functionality needed for the most complex projects.

About Swiss Academic Software

Swiss Academic Software is the publisher of Citavi and was founded in Zürich in 2004. The company's mission is to make complex software as user-friendly and intuitive as possible.

For more information, please contact:

Jennifer Schultz
+41 43 888 20 78
jennifer.schultz@citavi.com

Links

<http://www.citavi.com> – Citavi Homepage
<http://www.citavi.com/team> – Information for Citavi Team